MEDICINAL

are extracted from Vegetable products, combinng in them the Mandrake or May Apple, which is recognized by physicians as a substitute for calemel, possessing all the virtues of that mineral, without its bad after effects.

As an Anti-Bilious Medicine

They are incomparable. They stimulate TOR-PID LAVER, invigorate the NERVOUS SYS-TEM, and give tone to the DIGESTIVE OR-GANS, creating perfect digestion and thorough essimilation of food. They exert a powerful influence on the KIDNEYS and LIVER, and through these organs remove all impurities, thus vitalizing the tissues of the body and causing a healthy condition of the system.

AS AN ANTI-MALARIAL REMEDY

They have no equal; and as a result act as a preventive and cure for Bilious, Remittent, In-termittent, Typhoid Fevers, and Fever and Ague. Upon the healthy action of the Stomach depends, almost wholly, the health of the hu-

A Diabolical Plot

Mr. C. E. Blair, an elderly married man of Chatham, N. Y., and a wealthy cotton batting manufecturer; Mary Connelly, a fleshy Irish woman, aged forty; Joseph Volkener and his wife Mary appeared in the Essex Market Pclice Court, New York, Thursday. From their evidence the following amazing story is gleared: In September Mrs. Connelly and Mrs. Velkener became intimate, and when Mr. Connelly deserted his wife, October 1, she went to live with Mrs. Volkener. Fieding her hasband had gone to Boston, hirs, Connelly determined to follow him, taking the night boat October 4, Mrs. Volkener going with her. They got acquainted with Mr. Blair, who is much respected at his home, and he stemed quite taken with Mrs. Volkoner, registering with her as man and wife at the Morsball House, Boston, next morning. Next day Mr. Blair returned to his home and the women to New York city. A correspondence was kept up between Blair and Mrs. Veikener. On Monday last Biair wrote to her that he would be come to New York on Wednesday and bring a turkey and spend Thanksgiving Day with her. A plot was then conceived by Mr. Volkaper and commulcated to his wite and Mrs. Councily, He said he wou'd tuy some morphice so as to put the old man out of the way quietly. When dead they would est his beard off, cover his face and hands with dirt, dress him in cld and torn clothes, put old and worn shoes on his feet, and then, during the night, Volkener would carry the dead body down into the cellar, and leave the door into the street open. Some of the neighbors would find the body and serd for the police. They would take the old man for a tramp who had sough shelter in the cellar and then had died of exhaustion. The body would be taken to the Morgue; there no one would recognize or claim him, and in a few days he would either be buried or given to the doctors. They would take his money, watch and chain, jewelry and clothing, and no one would be the wiser for it.

Tuesday night Volkoger paid $5 for a bottle containing morphice in powder, took it bome and added water to it. It was enough to kill hundred men. Blair arrived as the Volkoners' Wednesday noon, and was af-fectionately received. Mrs. Connelly continued the story as follows: Blair and Mrs. Volkener soon went out together, and Mr. Volkener handed me that bottle and said he would kill me if I did not do what he said. 1 was to give the bottle to Mrs. Volkener when she got home. Then Joseph Volkener hid himself under the bed. Mrs. Volkeper and Mr. Blair got back shortly after, and I did what Mr. Volkener had ordered me to de. I gave SAWED AND SPLIT WOOD AND ALL her the bottle with the poison in it. I was sent for some boor, and when I returned with the pitcher Mrs. Volkener was sitting on Mr. Blair's knee. Mrs. Volkener called me 'Austy,' and Alexandria, Virginia, told me to put the pitcher and tumbler behind her on the bureau. While sitting on Mr. Blair's knee I saw her reach over and pour some of the stuff from the bottle into the beer in one of the glasses. She told me to hand Mr. Blair his glass, and we all three drank of the beer. I felt nervous and spilt some, and when I had to go into the bedroom Joseph Volkener oursed me for not giving it right. I served up the dinner of sausages, and Mr. Blair drank three glasses of beer. Each time Mrs. Volkener poured some of the mixture into his glass. After Mr. Blair had drank the second glass ho began to complain of feeling dizzy and sick. Mrs. Volkoner only laughed at him and said he ought to be ashamed of himself for spoiling the party. Mr. Blair drank the third glass, and soon afterward became terribly sick. Mr. Blair suffered terribly during the night. He vomited, and was cold and white. I was so sure that he would die that I became frightened. Mr. Volkener, when Mr. Blair was lying unconscious, got up from under the bed and watched him. Twice he poured some drops from that bottle down Mr. Blair's throat, but each time Mr. Blair Mr. Blat's throat, but each time Mr. Blatr threw it up. Toward morning Mr. Blatr cutdenly became conscious Yolkener then went away. He cursed his wife for giving Mr. Blair too much of the stuff, which he said had made him sick. Then he if. Mr. Blair got up early, and would take nothing. He was so sick that he kept vormiting all the time. I got more and more frightened, and went to a doctor in Houston etreet and showed him the bottle. After he had even ined it he said: "Mr. God! where did had examined it he said: "My God! where did you get that? The druggist that sold you that preparation should be sent to prison for life. There is enough poison there to kill one hundred men." It was the doctor who put that label on the bottle.

The Volkeners and Mrs. Connelly were held for a further hearing.

Mrs. Connelly is known in police circles as a petty thiaf, and Mrs. Volkener as a shopliffer. She is also a fortune teller, and is known as "Zoe, the English Gypsy Queen."
